MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

After the euphoric success of our first Annual Convention, we welcome you to the second one in our young life. This event reflects a very important fact: membership input is evident in the entire gamut of events. You wanted an extra convention day and you have it. You wanted more time to meet each other and you have it via our extended morning breakfasts. You wanted more seminars and you have it. You asked for more member participation in seminars and you have that as well.

Thus, we are an organization that listens and responds to its membership. We urge you, as you enjoy the chit-chat, seminars, concerts, spontaneous playing and fun, to remember your input is requested and respected. We ask more of it in open forum.

We applaud our Long Island hosts, without whom this event could never have taken place. As one who worked closely with them, I am aware of the job they have done.

Have a great convention! We warmly greet you for your support. The mandolin is alive and well because of your collective efforts.

Norman Levine

Honorary Foreign Members of the Board of Directors

Although we are an American organization (by extension, Canada is also included), our goals are wider than just events and conditions pertinent to domestic mandolin. Looking to the international sphere, we can participate in a wider mandolin environment, learn from what is done overseas, and impart our own mark on the international community.

As a link with international classical mandolinists, we have nominated four honorary Board members. These people have no duties within the Society except as outlets to the worldwide community of mandolinists. Each of these individuals has shown high regard for international participation within the field.

Each of these members will serve for a three year period. There will be no set number of people on the honorary Board, so feel free to nominate others at any time. We trust that nominations will be serious and not merely popularity contests.

We contacted a total of seven people this year. Four responded. Undoubtedly, language difficulties intervened in at least one non-respondent's case.

Siegfried Behrend is an indefatigable member of the fretted musical world. His mandolin and guitar works (compositions and arrangements) would need pages to be listed. He teaches, arranges, forms musical festivals, travels extensively, and has won acclaim throughout the world for his achievements. Dr. Behrend is one of our two German society members and has written a work dedicated to our organization.

Keith Harris needs no introduction to American mandolinists. His brilliant concerts, ensembles (Reinoldus Consort and mandolin orchestras), and seminars have made a deep impression among us. Keith has also issued records and translated musical books into English (Wolki's History of the Mandolin being one of them). An Australian, now living in Germany, Keith represents the highest degree of musicianship in our field.

Hisao Itoh is the honored President of the Japan Mandolin Union, which is the organizational arm of that country's mandolinists. Mr. Itoh also edits a Japanese magazine on mandolin and conducts the Gifu Mandolin Orchestra. He is considered the true patriarch of his field in Japan. He forever corresponds with people all over the world and truly merits being on our Honorary Board as one of our mirrors to the international scene.

Ken Tanioka, editor of Japan Mandolin Union magazine, is another individual whose outlook is very international. There is not a country with a sizable mandolin community that does not know Ken. He works hard to introduce Japanese mandolin to the world. As an important behind-the-scenes activist, he binds many of us in the international community together.

Mr. Tanioka, by the way, has offered to send the annual English language J.M.U. Review issue to members of our Society gratis; let us know if you are interested, or write to him direct: Ken Tanioka — 44-24 Den'en Chofu 5-chome, Ota-Ku, Tokyo — 145 Japan

Additional nominations are as follows: Kurt Jensen, Denmark; Hugo D'Alton, England; Giuseppe Anedda, Italy.

Classical Mandolin Society

Our Reason for Being

In Europe, Japan and Australia, classical mandolin is receiving the organized mandolin is receiving the organized recognition it deserves. In America, the mandolin is either considered an instrument of a bygone era or an accompaniment to a Bluegrass guitar.

The basic goal of our Society is to restore the mandolin to its position among professional instruments and to do so on a continuous basis in America.

To achieve this goal, the Society will initiate programs in the following areas:

- Encourage music teachers to offer mandolin instruction and to assist in elevating the competence of those who do.
- Attract more and higher trained players into our groups.
- Develop an environment for writing and publishing American compositions for the classical mandolin.
- Encourage research programs through direct grants by the Society and by others.
- Initiate publicity programs to make American music communities more aware of the classical mandolin. An important phase of this effort is getting the instrument heard in our public and private schools so that students at early ages will recognize the mandolin as well as its unique sound.
- In addition to our own resources, we will strive to obtain funding for serious classical mandolin musical grants.
- Preserve our music and instruments, and honor past American mandolin virtuosi.
